Extraosseous myeloma is a form of myeloma where the myeloma cells initially develop in a location other than the osseous phase, but later invade the osseous phase. To our knowledge, there has been no reported case of such disease in the chest. A case of a 74-year-old female with chest pain, chest wall tenderness, and a localized mass in the upper right chest wall, is reported. The lesion was surgically excised and the diagnosis of extraosseous myeloma was made.import time import datetime from dateutil import parser from typing import List, Optional class TimeManager: """"Holder for current time to start time tracking."""" def __init__(self): self.start_time = parser.parse(datetime.datetime.now().strftime("%Y-%m-%dT%H:%M:%S.%fZ")) self.now = datetime.datetime.now() self.end_time = parser.parse(datetime.datetime.now().strftime("%Y-%m-%dT%H:%M:%S.%fZ")) def now_time_on(self, context: Optional[dict], is_call_context: bool): """"Provide current time for workflow context info. .. note:: This method should return a

The biosynthesis of the diverse plant diterpenes is catalyzed by different cytochromes P450 (CYP450) enzymes, their respective diterpene synthases, and an assembly of enzymes known as short chain prenyltransferases. This work describes the application of an Escherichia coli expression system to the production of a recombinant fusion protein of a plant P450-prenyltransferase catalyzing the formation of a tricyclic kaurane-type diterpene. All expression and purification steps could be performed within 1 day per construct. The resulting recombinant fusion enzyme, composed of a plant P450 as a full length prenyltransferase and a rabbit liver holoenzyme as a prenyl donor, catalyzed the synthesis of the target diterpene, 5alpha, 15(R)-dihydroxylabda-8(17),13-diene, in a preparative scale in an overall yield of 30% with a diastereomeric ratio of >97:3. This process represents a generic platform for the production of a wide range of diterpenes of prenyltransferase type in a high-yielding, high-selectivity and highly efficient manner. 3da54e8ca3
