A: I figured it out. The issue is that Dreamweaver creates a content folder in the same directory as the.php file. I renamed the content folder so it's no longer the same as the other content folder and I still see the same issue. Q: How to return a string from a javascript function defined in a typescript file I have a javascript function declared in a separate typescript file. The function is able to return a string. This function is being called from a Typescript function in my main js file. I have tried calling the javascript function by using a string and assigning the return value to a variable. But I am getting the following error "return value is undefined". Here is my code: // JAVASCRIPT export default class OrgAccess extends AbstractService { @Output() valueChange(value: string) { if (document.getElementById('dropdownOrgAccess').value!= value) { this.dropdownOrgAccess.selectedIndex = this.value; if (document.getElementById('dropdownOrgAccess').value == "Security")
{ this.setActiveUser(document.getElementById('hiddenTxtVisitorUserName')); } } } return ValueFromJavascript(); // JS FUNCTION function return ValueFromJavascript() { var test = "Test value"; var returnValue = test; return returnValue; } } // TYPESCRIPT interface JavaScriptService { [key: string]: any; } const originalValue = "Test value"; const onComponentCreate = (component: HTMLElement) => { var service = angular.extend(originalValue, { 82138339de
