Church Research Institute, was used to obtain single-shot echo-planar spectroscopy with a Larmor frequency of 500 MHz. The 7-mm cryoprobe, which could be used with an active bolus application, was designed to achieve a uniform temperature and isocapnic condition. The 7-mm cryoprobe did not cause any cross talk during the echo-planar imaging sequence and a significant change in the signal-to-noise ratio (SNR) was not observed.
