Keymacros is an advanced keyboard macro recorder application that allows to record multiple actions in a single keyboard command. When you use a keyboard macro, you can press any key combination you want, select any menu or button, or even go to the Finder or any folder and bring back up a list of items with one click. The macro you made is stored in the application as a keyboard shortcut that you can assign to any button in your system, making your work much more efficient. Keymacros is a powerful tool that's especially useful for getting things done quickly, efficiently and easily. The program lets you record your keystrokes or mouse actions and assign any to a key shortcut. The main window of Keymacros features a button-bar to record all your actions, as well as a window to display all the keyboard shortcuts and assigned commands. The window shows the keyboard shortcuts in a list where you can add, remove and change each. You can also record your actions in two ways: one for each application, and the other that records a set of actions in the Finder. A drop-down menu allows you to choose which option you need. You can record actions in many different ways, and you can add, remove and change them at any time. You can add any key or keyboard shortcut you like, including windows like the one you are in at the moment or a Finder folder. When you're done, you can export your list of keyboard shortcuts as a script to use with any application or you can share them with other users. Keymacros allows you to record an unlimited number of actions, which is useful for repeating any of them.
