Alex Morawiec Alexander Morawiec (born 24 February 1997) is an Australian rugby union footballer who plays as a prop for the Queensland Reds in Super Rugby and the Queensland Country. He made his international debut for Australia in 2019 and was a member of the Australian squad that won the 2019 Rugby Championship. Early life Alex started playing rugby aged 5, with his mother Norma who once coached him in her native Maroubra, New South Wales. "She took him to the local boys' rugby club because I wasn't good enough to make it," Morawiec says. "I was always asking her to come and watch but she couldn't because she had a job." Morawiec would play in a nearby park with other kids in his neighbourhood. He says that making the junior rugby team in year 12 was "probably the best day of his life". Club career Eastern Suburbs At Eastern Suburbs Rugby Club, Morawiec played from the age of seven to 16. He played with the NSW/ACT Rams, the Australian Schoolboys Rugby team and represented the Australian under 15s at the 2014 IRB Junior World Championship held in New Zealand. After a year out with injury, Morawiec made his first grade debut at age 18 in Round 1 of the 2017 NRL season at his old club, Eastern Suburbs Tigers. Queensland Country The following year, Morawiec signed with the Queensland Country squad in the National Rugby Championship. In October, he was named captain of Country's 2018 season. Super Rugby On
