Conformational changes, induced by selective agonists and antagonists, in different portions of GABAA receptor (GABAAR) complexes lead to allosteric communication within the receptor, providing a fundamental mechanism of intersubunit regulatory crosstalk. This communication mechanism may be the molecular basis of receptor plasticity. Here we present crystal structures of rat GABAAR in complex with GABA and three benzodiazepines. This analysis reveals two striking features: (i) A striking conformational change in the M2 domains (a change 3da54e8ca3
