The purpose of this paper is to study and evaluate the effectiveness of an evidence-based MRTT program in effecting the positive change in academic outcomes of teachers.The effects of the MRTT program on teachers' teaching effectiveness were examined in terms of overall, average, and individual aspects. The authors used data from the National Assessment Program in Literacy and Numeracy (NAPLAN) and the NSW Assessment Program: Standards for Teaching (APSET). Two of the MRTT's modes of operation were examined in detail: personal and professional (two-way) learning. The authors applied multilevel analyses to account for any bias associated with program roll-out at the school, classroom and student levels. They found that the MRTT program is associated with higher scores on average and all aspects of teaching effectiveness. For the purpose of our research, the two-way learning mode had a greater effect on the positive change in students' NAPLAN reading and writing and mathematics scores than the personal mode. The findings have implications for MRTT design and implementation. TIFF File Format: TIFF files are highly compressed and efficient image files format.
