So, if the user clicks on a hyperlink or selects a list item from a drop-down list, the user is brought to the corresponding webpage, instead of the PDF document. Evince provides a light-weight interface for navigating the document, so no other program will run when one clicks on a hyperlink. By dragging and dropping the document, Evince can be made to act like a standard PDF viewer. While this process usually takes a few seconds, it may take a few minutes on very large documents.
