It is available as an free to download software and Windows/Mac OSX software. If you have not previously purchased or downloaded it, you can download the latest version for free from any of the four places below: The final presentation code, that I call YS TIFF Converter has been generated from a final solution, that has been given by BON. The title and the presentation code itself are a credit of BON, so, the author gave me the rights to release the final solution to the public. As BON told me, he just wanted to make a fast and reliable tool and didn't pay much attention about publicity. But, he is a great human being, so, I thought it was best to give him credit (as much as I could) for his great solution, that I call YS TIFF Converter. I thank BON for being so generous, and I thank you for visiting our website. YS TIFF Converter will work under Windows XP/Vista/7 and Mac OSX. No. 87-2043. United States Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit. June 13, 1988. Before KEITH, KENNEDY and NATHANIEL R. JONES, Circuit Judges. PER CURIAM. 1 Plaintiff-appellant, Harold Weinstein, has appealed the district court's order affirming the Secretary's denial of his claim for disability benefits. Because the findings of the administrative law judge ("ALJ") are supported by substantial evidence, and because we agree with the decision of the district court, we affirm. 2 Harold Weinstein was born on July 25, 1938. He completed high school, and then he received a certification as an electrician. In August of 1970, Weinstein was employed as an electrician, and he was terminated in August of 1976, due to his alleged physical and mental disabilities. 3 Weinstein filed a claim for disability benefits in April of 1977. On September 23, 1981, Weinstein was found to be disabled due to a history of alcoholism, epilepsy, and seizure disorder. He was awarded benefits as of September 26, 1981. When his benefits were terminated in 1983, Weinstein was determined to be capable of performing light work, and was therefore ineligible for further benefits. An administrative hearing was held, and Weinstein's claim was again denied on March 12, 1984. The ALJ found that Weinstein was able to return to his former employment. The ALJ also found that Weinstein was capable of performing light work in the national economy. Based on this finding, the ALJ found that Weinstein was ineligible for benefits as of January 31, 1984. 4 The Appeals Council affirmed the
