Field of the Invention This invention pertains to a method and apparatus for storing time varying data, and in particular to a method and apparatus for storing primary data that is stored as a series of time stamped records and secondary data in a sequential order. 2. Description of the Prior Art The common use of time stamping records are to locate documents that are in an archive system. Because of the volume of data involved, this task of locating an archive record, such as a data record containing time stamps and file attributes, is not very time efficient. Further, the time stamps in the archive may have been created at a time when an efficient record management system was not available or when a specific record management system was not used. Also, the time stamps may not be regularly time stamped. Further, the record management system may not be in a timely manner updating the archive contents. The time stamp record may, for example, be located in a sequential order and be assigned a sequential record number, such as a serial number. The record management system may provide sequential record numbers rather than using sequential time stamps. The sequential time stamps may not provide adequate time correlation between records. Therefore, it is desirable to provide a method and apparatus that overcomes problems associated with the prior art. The neurodegenerative disease associated with aging is closely related to a loss of dendritic spine density and synapse loss. The cyclin-dependent kinase inhibitor p27(kip1) plays a major role in controlling neuronal proliferation. In the present study, a synthetic peptide specific to the C-terminal region of p27(kip1) was used to immunize old rats against p27(kip1). Passive immunization and an associated decline in the level of p27(kip1) was also tested. The immunization raised antibodies to p27(kip1). These antibodies effectively disrupted the cyclin-CDK2 complex and subsequently led to cell cycle activation, decrease in p27(kip1) expression, and increase in cyclin D/CDK4/CDK6. Immunization significantly increased synaptic density, improved spatial learning and memory, and reduced degenerative changes in the hippocampus in old rats. These results suggest the potential value of blocking p27(kip1) in neurodegeneration associated with aging. Cleaning: How to wash your bras. By: Dawn Sandoval As a woman, there are certain things you can't seem to avoid doing. Whether you're a mom, a wife, a teacher, a beautician, a student, a cleaner, etc. — there are certain things you have to do, such as picking up your kids, cooking a delicious meal, or bathing your dog. We all have schedules, we all have jobs, and at the end of the day, we just want to come home and feel at peace with the things that we've done. It's human nature. Why

Welcome to Seven Fish, Tuna & Thoughts, this blog is about my interests of fishing, wildlife, nature, boats, travel and all things ocean and aqua related. I am a year long tourist while living in Finland, just a small part of the world that I want to share with you through my writings. Category: Life and Experiences When I first see Saimaa freshwater lake I was filled with all sorts of thoughts and emotions. One of which being how mighty and fragile the nature is. Lakes are of course natural wonders; most of them are cradled in stunning, pristine surroundings. But lakes can also be a hostile place for living things. [...] We finally made it to the water. Warm, sunny weather welcomed us to the shores of Saimaa. I took a short nap in the hammock, and I prepared food. We sat together, in the sun, discussing our plan for the upcoming days. The fresh air felt so good, and this laid-back mood spread itself around the whole [...] I hate to go fishing. Mostly because I'm a bit of a lazy asshole. But hey, i'm making excuses... So if any of you know me, well, then you may know that I've been to Uganda and South Sudan. Two countries that I'm very eager to visit again for many reasons. But in this blog post, I want [...] Hello, friends. I know it's been a long time since I posted anything, even if I've been active here and on Instagram. I'm sorry for the lack of activity here, it was a full time job for me back then, and it still is. I just have zero time, to be honest.
