Hormone Replacement Therapy (HRT) Hormone replacement therapy (HRT) is used to replace lost hormones when an individual is experiencing menopausal symptoms. Both estrogen (estrogen replacement therapy (ERT) or peri-menopausal HRT) and progesterone (progesterone replacement therapy (PRT) or menopausal HRT) are used to help relieve vasomotor symptoms such as hot flashes, night sweats, and vaginal dryness. Therapeutic Benefits of HRT BONE MINERAL DENSITY: In women, estrogen is critical for the maintenance of normal bone mineral density (BMD), which decreases by 20-40% during the menopausal period. Women over the age of 50 lose an average of 0.05g of bone mineral density per annum, and by the age of 60, their BMD can be decreased by as much as 50% from the peak levels seen in early adulthood. HRT is believed to help prevent further bone loss and the frequency and severity of osteoporosis. YOUNGER LOOKING SKIN: The levels of estrogen decline as women grow older, which can make them look older than their actual age. With estrogen, you can maintain your youthful appearance. MELANORRHINE (FIBEROUS TRACT) PROLIFERATION: Estrogen inhibits the proliferation of the smooth muscle cells that line the uterine and vaginal walls. With the absence of estrogen, the smooth muscle cells proliferate, causing thinning of the vaginal walls and a thickening of the cervix. HRT PREVENTS CHANGES TO THE UTERINE (REPRODUCTIVE) TISSUE: The two estrogen receptors have two main sites of action in the uterus: estrogen receptor 1 on the endometrium and estrogen receptor beta on the stroma (fibrous tissue) of the lining of the uterus. Estrogen acts on these receptors, which means that any progesterone present in the circulating blood is not in competition with estrogen for these receptors. DEREK LEES, M.D. I had a natural menopause - but did not recognize it. I had an accumulation of estrogen for 22 years due to stress and not having children. When I did have children, the symptoms were severe - migraines, stomach pain, hot flashes, lower back pain, anxiety, and I had to Larvicidal and ovicidal activity of amphotericin B, miconazole and nystatin against Anopheles gambiae mosquitoes (Diptera: Culicidae). The present study evaluates the activity of amphotericin B (AmB), miconazole nitrate (Mz) and nystatin (NYT) against early and late third-instar Anopheles gambiae (Diptera: Culicidae). AmB and Mz both promoted 98.0 and 100.0% third-instar mortality, respectively, on all evaluated concentrations of media (0.16, 0.32, 0.64 and 1.28 mg/l). AmB also prevented 96.2 and 100% egg hatch at 0.32, 0.64 and 1.28 mg/l, respectively, while Mz did not influence egg hatch at all concentrations tested. On the other hand, the egg hatch inhibition conferred by NYT ranged from 100.0 to 86.6% with a proportional increase of concentration from 0.16 to 1.28 mg/l. Interestingly, the inhibition of egg hatch was higher than mortality among the tested concentrations of the drugs. These results suggest that AmB, Mz and NYT may interfere in the development and metamorphosis of the third-instar mosquito. The adequate concentration range of the medications can be an important tool in the search for alternative larvicides against anopheles mosquitoes. © 2017 Society of Chemical Industry. Prosecutors in a Florida drug prosecution case have reached the 70-day deadline to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to proceed with criminal charges against a man suspected of being involved in a botched drug robbery in 2013. William Buchanan, 24, of Punta Gorda was arrested July 22 at Charlotte County Jail in connection with an October 2013 robbery of a male victim in the 600 block of 22nd Street N.E. in Punta Gorda. According to an affidavit for Buchanan's arrest from Feb. 23, 2013, officials with the Charlotte County Sheriff's Office responded to a call of a robbery that occurred at 7:22 p.m. During the incident, a man was robbed of his vehicle and had small items taken from him. According to documents released during Buchanan's arrest, Buchanan was the passenger in the suspect's vehicle. The driver of the vehicle, Mitchell Rundle, had a handgun, and was allegedly seen holding the handgun during the course of the robbery.
