Rickettsial infection has been reported for one cat flea (Ctenocephalides felis), which has been associated to human granulocytic ehrlichiosis in Brazil. Herein, we present the molecular characterization of Rickettsia felis in field-collected cat flea. Infected fleas were identified by primers specific for the 16S rRNA gene and then a fragment of the citrate synthase-encoding gene was amplified. The partial sequences obtained were analyzed by a phylogenetic approach. The 16S gene sequences revealed that the isolated Rickettsia was unique and was closely related to R. felis from a dog (99.8%) and from fleas from an armadillo (Acutarctomys russ
