Baba Is You is a games-experience that is designed to show that even though we have all grown up with technology that can be a major part of our lives, our mind can still be of that "old-school" way of thinking, that our mind is still capable of solving problems and creating, even now. Baba Is You is a puzzle game in which the player, Baba, is both the main character, but also in his own way a direct observer of that puzzle game. The player needs to solve certain puzzles around the game to progress, by whatever means. In Baba Is You, there are dozens of puzzles that have meaning, but also puzzles that you can create yourself. Some puzzles are well planned, while others are thrown together with whatever you have on hand. This game is designed as a very educational experience, but still in the context of a puzzle. This application addresses Broad Challenge Area (03) Biomedical Technology and Specific Challenge Topic 03-HL-103: Animal models of implantable cardiac pacemakers and defibrillators. The goal of the proposed program is to determine if the expression of a secreted form of the insulin-like growth factor 1 receptor (IGF1R) in cardiac myocytes confers protection against cardiac hypertrophy and remodeling and stimulates myocardial regeneration after myocardial infarction (MI). In the proposed experiments, the role of the secreted form of IGF1R in cardiac myocytes will be directly tested by direct expression of the secreted form of IGF1R in the mouse myocardium using AAV serotypes that target expression to the cardiac myocytes and by using a myocardial transgene overexpressing IGF1R secreted from an artificial promoter. The effects of IGF1R overexpression on cardiac hypertrophy will be evaluated using the gold standard of cardiac hypertrophy endpoints, the heart weight to body weight ratio, and by measuring the expression of a target gene, ANF, in the hypertrophic heart. The effects on cardiac remodeling will be assessed by measuring infarct size, apoptosis, and collagen deposition and by measuring LV dilatation and function in a model of post-MI remodeling. In addition, whole animal survival, LV wall thickness, LV wall mass, haemodynamic function, and blood flow will be measured and/or recorded from cardiac pacemakers that deliver arrhythmic stimuli or no stimuli to produce a cardiac dysrhythmia c9d1549cdd
