How to send feedback to the Queen? I understand that there are many ways, but I wonder which one is most right and correct. A: There are many (good) ways to approach a monarch. However, I am assuming you are referring to sending a formal letter. A: In general, you don't. The Queen no longer receives "official" letters, to which she replies personally, through a government office. You can send a card, which she can reply to, through the Royal Household, or the Palace. But in general, it is not appropriate to send her a written letter. Special Events Friberthdale High School has hosted an annual Parent Leadership Day since 2005. In that time, hundreds of parents have attended the event, which allows them to meet with teachers and administration to discuss and address concerns about the school. The event is also a time to bond with other parents, as they share common experiences and concerns. There are different ways that the event has been run over the years, but the exact format varies. However, there are some clear trends, including increased parent participation and a focus on issues that impact children at the school. 2007 150 adults with children in grades 2, 3 or 4 met with Friberthdale administration and teachers to discuss issues around school, such as academics, extracurricular activities, and sports. They also had the opportunity to see progress in the school after taking a tour of the classrooms and area. This was the first year that the meeting took place in the high school's library. 2008 150 parents and guardians attended the event. They were able to connect with the school about issues
