Differential gearings are in general known in the art. These usually comprise, as main elements, a differential housing, a differential hub shell, a differential case, and a differential carrier. Such a differential gearing is disclosed in, for example, German Patent Document DE 34 34 430 A1. The differential carrier thereof is arranged coaxially with the differential case. A planetary gear is rotatably supported in the differential carrier. A differential pinion carrier is supported on the differential carrier for rotatable movement about a first axis. In each case a differential pinion meshes with the planetary gear. Differential planet wheels are rotatably supported on the differential pinion carrier for rotation about a second axis, which is offset from the first axis. Each
