(hexwars vsti vst plugins rtas). (7th Cir.1990) (same). "The mere presence of... [obstruction] conduct... is not enough to constitute a violation... if the conduct is not, as the Government contends, done for the purpose of interfering with the officer's enforcement of the law." United States v. Grier, 866 F.2d 908, 923 (7th Cir.1989). The government has presented evidence that Martinez and his co-defendants exchanged words and acted in a belligerent manner, but there is no evidence that either objected to or tried to interfere with the deputies' custody of her. Nor is there evidence that the other defendants even knew about the handcuffing or standing at the door. 13 The government could have been clearer in its presentation of the conviction to the jury. See Illinois v. Wardlow, --- U.S. ----, 110 S.Ct. 688, 690-91, 107 L.Ed.2d 876 (1990) (government has burden of proving more than mere possession of a criminal record). However, the failure to clarify the obstruction conviction does not compel reversal. See United States v. Wesley, 990 F.2d 360, 362 (8th Cir.1993) (prosecutor's improper remarks during closing argument do not require reversal if examined in context and considered in light of whole record); United States v. Della Rose, 868 F.2d 295, 299 (7th

Cir.1989) (prosecutor's improper remarks did not create plain error). Here the court did admonish the jury to consider the evidence and the arguments only in relation to the charges against each defendant. We presume that the jury followed that admonishment, and we cannot say that the reversal in this case warrants a new trial. V.
