I want all variables to be global. This is my query: `select * from student_info where student_id= 1002 and c.CourseName = 'Electrical Engineering'` I would like to have the CourseName as a variable. I tried this: `declare @CourseName varchar(20) declare @CourseCode varchar(20) select @CourseName='Electrical Engineering',@CourseCode='CSE' from student_info where student_id=1002 and c.CourseName = 'CSE' select * from student_info where student_id= 1002 and @CourseName = @CourseCode` What I was hoping is that if all queries end up having a common variable I can just add them in the select, like this: `select * from student_info where student_id= 1002 and @CourseName = @CourseCode, @CourseName='CSE', @CourseCode='CSE'` Thanks in advance. A: Your best bet is to use a Prepared Statement. This way you have the benefits of parametrizing your queries, and don't have to worry about manually constructing a query every time you need to execute a new query. Assuming you have a StudentId field in your Student_Info table: CREATE PROCEDURE [dbo].[Proc1] (@CourseCode VARCHAR(20), @CourseName VARCHAR(20)) AS BEGIN SELECT * FROM d
