When I visit a route, like /entities/1/view, it returns a 404. However, when I visit /entities/1, it gets redirected to /entities/1/view and then I'm allowed to view the content. I understand that this is a security feature, but I can't change that. I also can't remove the [Authorize] attribute from the ContentController (this is a requirement of our software). How can I remove this redirection? Is there a way to set a default value for the path? A: I found that the reason was that I had a default route in Global.asax. It matched the content urls. I don't know about anyone else but I am soooo jealous of the weather in Utah! It has been snowing a lot here, up to my knees. Well, maybe not quite but I have had some great snow days that have been sooo much fun. Oh well, that just means that I am even more excited for spring and all of the beautiful weather that comes along with it. Anyways, here is a few things that I have been doing lately. A while back my mom sent me some baby alligator mitts. I love them but I am always worried about my hands being cold so I never wear them. Well, the other night I was sooo cold and I looked at them and decided to put them on. I wore them into work and it was wonderful! My hands stayed warm throughout the whole day! I am going to order more for myself and my kids. They are alligator and are so soft! My grandpa gave me this scarf that he knitted when I was in grade school. Well, I love it and wear it all of the time. It reminds me of him and is one of my favorite neck wraps. My boyfriend bought me this scarf that I love and he wore it all winter. I was so proud of him and then I thought I should have one just like it

A: I assume this is generated by the Windows command line interpreter -type n in response to some arbitrary command. Try the /p command line switch. Here is what I get when running that command from a command prompt - C:\Users\user>for /p %a in ("C:\Program Files\Oxygen Forensic Suite 5\OFS5v5_setup.exe") do @"%a" %a C:\Users\user> Which, as you can see, returns the fully qualified path to the Oxygen Forensic Suite installer - C:\Program Files\Oxygen Forensic Suite 5\OFS5v5_setup.exe

A Beginner's Guide to Voluminous Hair All about voluminous hair. What is it? Voluminous hair is very shiny and full looking hair. Voluminous hair is not necessarily growing longer than your usual texture, but it is full looking hair. How to achieve it? How to achieve that shiny, full look. What to consider while trying to get voluminous hair. All of these questions are answered in this article. What is it? Voluminous hair is very shiny and full looking hair. Voluminous hair is not necessarily growing longer than your usual texture, but it is full looking hair. How to achieve it? How to achieve that shiny, full look. What to consider while trying to get voluminous hair. All of these questions are answered in this article. No, not a great idea. Voluminous hair doesn't necessarily mean growing longer than your usual hair style. Voluminous hair refers to the natural fiber of the hair being fuller looking. How to apply it? Because voluminous hair is often, if not always, very thick hair, it should be left alone and not done every day. For that reason, it is ideal to let it air dry or use a diffuser. If you want your hair to still appear shiny, do an end-to-end or end-to-side braid. To show off your hair without making it look like you're parading it around your head, use a part that falls on the neckline to divide your hair. Note: Many people opt to get their hair chopped off. You can just get a haircut. If you need a scalp massage and hair treatment, then consider
