Chevy Chase to appear in voice for new Cosby Show It's been more than 30 years since Bill Cosby made his debut as Dr. Cliff Huxtable on The Cosby Show. And as for the 79-year-old comedian now known as a convicted sex offender, there's been a flurry of recent activity. Cosby Show co-star and comedian, Hank Prince, has told the Daily News that he's not sure whether the 79-year-old comedian will ever publicly admit to any wrongdoing. But both have indicated that the real Bill Cosby and the character Dr. Cliff Huxtable are as close as ever. "The Cosby Show cast members were always in touch with the real Cosby through later years. They were part of his family," Prince told the Daily News. "They could've seen the real Cosby not do well but they didn't want to see their family go through that," he added. But Prince says the actor is not about to appear on Cosby's upcoming Netflix special. "I would love to see Bill do a Netflix special, but I've got this thing where I'm not willing to embarrass him. I don't want to be the guy who says, 'Yeah, he did it.' " Prince says he's in touch with Cosby and his family and says the family has not been "scared" of the recent developments. "They're very philosophical. The kids have been through a lot. They've been scarred in the past, and I know they would never be foolish enough to make a spectacle of themselves again," Prince said. Cosby's daughter, Ensa, has said of the scandal swirling around the comedian, "He apologized, and I respect that. I'm grateful that he did that." Cosby's friend, Jerry Seinfeld, a comedian himself, says he's seen Cosby at some of his late-night sets and has nothing but good to say about his longtime friend. "I love Bill as a person. I was with him on the first night of the first Friends of Bill Cosby show. I've met him on maybe half a dozen other occasions. That's all I know. I've always liked him as a person. I think what's going on now, not just in the case of this show, but with all these other shows and the stuff that Detection of respiratory and cardiac activities from a single ECG signal. We present a method for detecting respiratory and cardiac activities based on analyzing a single electrocardiogram (ECG) waveform. The method is based on principal components analysis (PCA) and determination of marker-points (M-points) and is fully described in this paper. The method provides detection of R-wave, T-wave, QRS-complex, P-wave, atrial fibrillation (AF), and ventricular fibrillation (VF) with high detection accuracy. Q: Arrange two equations with one unknown, and one equation with two unknowns with non-negative variables. Let $\{x, y, z, w\}$ be non-negative variables. I want to prove that the following two constraints are equivalent:

$$\begin{cases} x+y+z+w=3a \\ 2x+y+3z=9b \end{cases}$$ and
$$\begin{cases} 3x+2y+z=12b \\ x+y+2z=16a \end{cases}$$
 I've tried the following: On the first one: $x+y+z+w=3a \Rightarrow x+y+z=2a$ (because $a \geq 0$) $3(x+y)+z=12b \Rightarrow 3(x+y)+z=12b$ (because $b \geq 0$) $3(x+y)+2z=12b \Rightarrow 3x+3y+2z=12b$ $x+y+z=2a \Rightarrow 2x+y+z=4a$ $2x+y+z=2(2a) \Rightarrow 2x+y+z=4a$ $2(2x+y+z)=4(2a) \Rightarrow 2(2x+y+z)=16a$ On the second one: $x+y+z=2a \Rightarrow 2x+y+z=4a$ $3(x+y)+z=12b \Rightarrow 3(x+y)+z=12b$ $2($
