Technical Field The invention relates to semiconductor device manufacturing and, in particular, to a method of forming a metal source and drain region in an integrated circuit on a semiconductor substrate. 2. Description of the Prior Art In semiconductor integrated circuit (IC) devices, a substrate is typically electrically connected to external devices through source and drain regions. The source and drain regions are typically formed by doping the substrate with impurities. However, the source and drain regions often introduce unwanted resistances in the integrated circuit. Therefore, metal source and drain regions are increasingly used. A metal-gate structure can be used to form a self-aligned metal source and drain region. The integration of conventional MOSFET technology and bipolar technology is often called BiCMOS technology. The SiGe technology is an attractive approach to the fabrication of high performance bipolar transistors. Typically, in the formation of a SiGe region, a low concentration (i.e., the Ge concentration is generally in the range of 1.0 to 2.0E18 per cubic cm.) is implanted in the surface of a Si substrate. A high concentration (i.e., the Ge concentration is generally in the range of 3.0E18 to 4.0E20 per cubic cm.) is

Torrent.Andrew Duncombe Andrew Duncombe (25 June 1741 – 15 June 1823) was a British barrister, and friend of Richard Brinsley Sheridan. Life He was the only son of William Duncombe, a London merchant of the company of "Duncombe & Moise", and his wife, Anne, daughter of John Fleming, of Ayr, Scotland. Duncombe was born in St. James's Square, Westminster, on 25 June 1741. His father, an Irishman, was mayor of Liverpool, and one of the best-known merchants of Liverpool; Duncombe himself, having a taste for the law, was sent to Eton in 1754, and took part in a singular event there, namely, that in which Lord Lyttelton's play of Amphitryon was performed, in which the barristers for the prosecution and defense respectively were his two uncles, the latter of whom spoke so learned a part that he was received with great applause. Upon his return to Liverpool, he engaged in his father's business, and was in 1759 returned to Westminster, where he was called to the bar, and began practice in the court of King's Bench. In 1770 he was appointed a teller at the Exchequer, and five years later was called to the Gray's Inn bar, where he became a bench

Les perspectives d’un chœur de Strictly come to life in this brand new class from series 3: If you’re a fan of John Pritchard’s solo television and the BBC’s Strictly Come Dancing, this is exactly the music event for you. John performs in the style of his beloved Strictly and the audience will be invited to dance too. John Pritchard’s notes contain lessons and variations for solo performance, but an overall focus on keeping the music light and simple. Using the elegance of the style from the show with a fresh and casual feel, this class features teaching notes, relevant waltzes and snippets from the TV show. A unique feature of this class is that John’s trumpet solo is played back live on the piano – so a fantastic music making experience.Q: Pandas generating a single frequency table from a dataframe I have this type of data:
