In this case $\cot^2\left(\frac{\pi}{8}\right)+1=3\sec\left(\frac{\pi}{8}\right)$ \$ A: The identity in question is seen to be true by plotting the numerator and denominator of the left hand side of the identity. The plot of the numerator of the left hand side is the red line. The plot of the denominator of the left hand side is the blue line. The numerator is seen to be as shown, when the blue line is rotated by $\frac{-2\pi}{8}$ radians, or $\frac{-\pi}{8}$ radians, and as seen, when the red line is also rotated by $\frac{-\pi}{8}$ radians, or $\frac{\pi}{8}$ radians. The difference in the angles of the rotated blue and red lines is $\frac{\pi}{8}$ radians, or $\frac{3\pi}{8}$ radians, and it follows that: $\cot^2\left(\frac{-\pi}{8}\right)+1=3\sec$

What age will a baby cease to be a baby? - wslh ===== wslh Too many times the use of words like "adulthood" "childhood" etc. to describe a specific period of age without the impact on the cognitive ability. Q Bizarre - meta tags are "normalizing" their URL in limesurvey I have a strange phenomenon going on and I'm wondering if someone can help me figure it out. I have a long, very detailed test. I've been running it for months on different computers, browsers, etc. To be clear, I'm talking about the completed test, since I have distinct accounts with multiple characters that have had the test completed. For the most part I'm happy with the format of the test. It looks good and it's organized well. However, the test itself has some pretty bizarre meta tags on it. For example, one meta tag looks like this: ..and it normalizes the URL like so: "" and fills in the parameters in there... no idea where it gets these parameters from, as I have not written any such script! Any ideas? A: From what I see, the problem is solved in limesurvey 2.0.2, which seems to have been just uploaded to the website.
