The Bureau of Land Management decided last year to overturn an Obama-era rule that allowed these undeveloped claims to be transferred to local governments under the right conditions – leaving the Interior Department with the final say on their fate. Now that the Trump administration has adopted the decision, about 175,000 claims will be subject to a national monument and potentially no longer available for leasing. “This puts communities on and off the map and makes it incredibly difficult for local governments to plan for, and project the economic and environmental repercussions of permanent monument designation,” said Erik Milito, director of the American Petroleum Institute. “Not only does this decision go against the Obama administration’s conservation legacy, it also harms a federal program that is one of the most effective ways to bring economic prosperity to rural communities in the West.” The Eastern Shoshone Tribe sued to overturn the rule and won in federal court in Montana this month, leaving open the possibility of new versions of the claim, but not for the more than 600,000 others that will be affected by the decision. And Oregon and Northern California rely heavily on the federal Bureau of Land Management to prepare their lease applications. “For Oregon and northern California, the loss of these precious resources will create a tremendous economic impact,” said Robert Goode, a former state energy adviser. The Icesave Coalition has been on the case for nearly five years, trying to persuade the BLM to change course. “It’s not only going to have a big impact on the leases that are still viable in

By Kpoj.Q: Does pthreads library support cancellation? Does pthreads library support cancel? If yes, how to cancel a thread from another thread? pthread_setcancelstate(pthread_self(), PTHREAD_CANCEL_ENABLE); //pthread_setcanceltype(pthread_self(), PTHREAD_CANCEL_ASYNCHRONOUS); can't invoke pthread_kill A: Pthreads are used internally by OS (and implemented by some or other OS drivers) to manage resources such as memory or CPU time in a multitasking environment. They support a variety of C functions (including flock) for the same purpose. The scheduling system uses these functions internally too, but you do not get direct access to them. The main purpose of the library is just to make it much easier for application developers to use threads. It provides the underlying functionality of the threads without the underlying complexity of implementing it. For synchronous operations you need to call the API functions from the thread, for asynchronous you can call them from another thread. Q: How can I ensure PHP is setting cookies for me? Possible Duplicate: How to expire session cookies? If I set a cookie as follows, it won't expire: setcookie('session_id', NULL, -1, '/'); In PHP 4.4.0 it will expire however. If I set it with php.ini it works perfectly. How do I ensure that PHP is still setting cookies for me in later versions?
A: If you want cookies to expire, you need to call setcookie and provide either a lifetime or expiration time. The present invention relates to an image reading device that reads the image information of an original 0cc13bf012

Prediction of Caesarean section rates based on large-scale medical records analysis in a Danish childbirth hospital. To implement a structured routine, to measure the obstetric morbidity in the department, and to serve as a basis for further development.
Transcription of the medical and nursing records for all patients delivered at the department during 2003-2004. By manual review of medical records, the period before and after birth was divided into eight stages of labour. From the nursing records, the phases of labour and the three highest stages in minutes were registered. In the Swedish model, the stage of active management of delivery (AMED) is defined as a sign of increasing labour pain and pressure applied to the birth canal. In this article, the term AMED-pain is used. In 2004, there were 106 women delivering in the department.
Thirty-six (34%) women had AMED-pain during pregnancy, and 55 (52%) women experienced AMED-pain during labour. The frequency of amniotomy in 2004 was 120/1000 deliveries. Of the 90 women who had AMED-pain during labour, 35 (38.8%) had a cervical score
