Sugar Land Expressway The Sugar Land Expressway (SLE) is a toll road located in Texas, United States. It is owned and operated by the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), and is part of the state's system of toll roads. The road begins at US 77 and US 90 near downtown Sugar Land, traveling northeast through the Texas City, Texas area and ends at Interstate 610 and US 59 near downtown Pearland. It is long with eight toll plazas. Route description SLE begins at Sugar Land Parkway and the Texas City bypass. Near the beginning, the SLE crosses underneath Spur 509 of the Texas State Highway Spur Project. Soon afterwards, the roadway becomes continuous with US 90 and the Fort Bend County-Brazoria County Regional Airport, and travels through a heavily developed area. In Texas City, SLE intersects with Interstate 59 and Interstate 69/US 90. After this, the highway becomes a freeway again with a few exceptions, and intersects with I-610 at exit 28A, before ending at I-610 and US 59, just southwest of the affluent Pearland area. SLE has eight toll plazas. History The SLE was built by the Brazoria County Transportation Authority (BCTA) beginning in 1998. The Sugar Land Expressway was built on what was then known as the North Freeway. Although the South Freeway had been built by the time the SLE opened, it had just been renamed the Cypresswood Boulevard (now Cypress Point Boulevard) a few months earlier. Construction Once completed, the SLE was the first fully controlled-access limited-access toll road in the state of Texas and the third in the United States. The Sugar Land Expressway is a part of the Texas Transportation System, a network of state highways that connects the center of the state with the Interstate Highway System. It is also the first and only toll road in Texas that offers zippable interchanges. The SLE was built under the same segmented design as the Texas Tollway system, with all interchanges built to the same standard as those on the other toll roads. Tolling The SLE opened to car traffic on July 24, 1999. By the time the SLE opened, the BCTA had paid $66 million of the total of $108.5 million in construction costs. The SLE serves as a relief route for east and west bound traffic

Food composition based on daily consumption. A major component of food compositional systems is daily

consumption. The intake of various foods is determined by these systems, and this intake is the basis for setting nutrient reference values and for the development of food-based dietary guidelines. Daily food intake of groups of healthy subjects is determined by methods based on keeping food diaries or on weighing and weighing less frequently. These methods provide the numbers of daily food intakes or daily food intakes measured in units of reference food items. Several factors may affect these daily food intakes and thus may influence the results of nutrient reference values or food-based dietary guidelines. These factors are basic demographics, anthropometry, food intake, and eating behaviour. In the present paper, we review such methods. In this review, we use food groups, daily food intakes, and typical food intakes as variables to illustrate the current concepts, which represent all of the most important issues for food-composition-based methods. Because of the population diversity of the subjects used to determine such food-based dietary intake, the literature available often mentions different values of daily food intake for different age groups or for men and women. However, when populations are comparable, the literature reports that 'aged 70 years' corresponds to 'men' and to 'women'. The relative importance of the different factors influencing daily food intake values and how these factors differ between age and gender is further discussed in detail.
