Chiffy is a free smartphone application that will let you make your hands-free calls without using a headset. The app is based on Bluetooth technology, which works wirelessly to exchange voice data between your smartphone and your car. It operates in two modes: hands-free and hands-free. Free and paid versions of Chiffy are available on the Play store. We tested both to find out if there is a difference in quality between the two versions. The free version of Chiffy offers the most basic features. It lets you make calls by pressing a button on your phone. The paid version has a few extra features, including real-time caller ID, text typing (SMS) and sound. Both versions support Android v. 2.3 and up. In our test, we noticed that the free version is a bit laggy, especially during picture-taking and video capturing. You will also need to allow permissions to access your contact list and your device's microphone. Chiffy got an average rating of 4.0 out of 5. Features: • Cordless calls – Using Bluetooth technology the app allows you to make hands-free calls without using any earpiece. • Call control – You can pause a call, end the call and switch to a new one by pressing a button. • Texting – The free version supports text messaging, while the paid version supports SMS. • Control your caller ID – You can view details about the number that is currently called. You can also view the caller ID right from the app. This works only if your device is paired to the app. • Real-time caller ID – The caller ID on your device is displayed right in the app. This works for both the free and paid versions of the app. • Performance – The app works fine on both low-end and high-end devices. It uses device resources and it may be slow on some low-end devices. Pros: • Free – If you can afford to use an app for making calls and texting, this is the way to go. The app is really easy to use. • User-friendly – Chiffy lets you control your phone via Bluetooth on your car. It is an intuitive app that makes using your phone while driving easy. • Hassle-free – There are no earphones to connect and disconnect, no wires to connect
