I would talk to the community college and pick out the courses that most appeal to you. Good luck! ~~~ davemel37 Thanks a lot!! ------ seymores The only solution to that problem is the unionization of all health care workers. Q: Cross-AppDomain Singleton - cast to known static type on constructor I have an issue that I can't solve. I have 2 applications, let's say App1 and App2. I have a static singleton in App2. And when that class is instantiated, I need to know which App is App2 or App1. I've found how to cast the object, but I can't cast the object because it isn't a known static type in the App1. Any suggestions? A: You should be able to just construct an instance of App2, and use the IClassProvider singleton to get the assembly name: App2.cs namespace MyProject { public static class App2 { public static IClassProvider GetAppClass() { return (IClassProvider 6d1f23a050
