michel polnareff, or "mick", was born in paris on the 9th of august 1936. it was in 1960 that he won the first prizes in drums, accordion and guitar at the conservatoire de paris. that same year, he met drummer marc morelenbaum (van der graaf generator, gilles vertongen) and was invited to join jean-michel jarre's band, where he played on two albums, jarre's la clé de l'univers and the 'expanding universe' album. he also played on the broadway musical cabaret, under composer burt bacharach. in 1966, he formed the band sugar plum fairy with guitarist pierre k. and other musicians. their debut album, cabaret, was awarded a gold disc for sales of 100,000 copies. in 1968, polnareff joined shake spears, a group which would, two years later, give us sex pistols. the 2 years he spent with the band, before leaving to join the free theatre in london, were fruitful for both mick and the band. three albums followed in 1969-1970: pole (credited to shake spears), feminine victim and marlene dietrich. in 1969, polnareff decided to pursue a solo career and started working on demos which were not well received at the time. it was during this period that he got involved with the new line up of shake spears, auditioned with a number of possible drummers and decided to go for jimi kilpinen, who was playing in a band called the a team. after the initial idea of getting together with two musicians, the band turned into a full trio - one singer, two guitars and one drummer. this line up was used for the recording of the "shake up the beast" album, which was released in 1972. (the free-earning period) the album was a lot of fun to play and the band developed a lot of songs based on only guitar and drums. the next album was recorded in london with only jimi kilpinen and macalpine, which, like its predecessor, was also much fun to play. it was followed by the zéro album, one of the first hard rock albums recorded by the a team. due to the lack of drummer, jimi kilpinen stepped down from the band. the band was now looking for a drummer who could play a strong drum solo and a great rock and roll feel. they contacted jan hammer, the founder of the heavy metal band hammerslammer, and engaged him for the zéro album. this album was very well received, and the band was soon hired to do a tour throughout europe. in 1973, the trio went on to participate in the live "zénith concert" in the world's fair of paris-montparnasse, winning a gold record for the tour. the trio signed with a french label for 'monk' (a 5-piece rock band made up of different musicians with different backgrounds) and recorded a couple of tracks, including a version of 'dance little sister' from the soundtrack to the film of the same name. the first gig of the monk band was in front of 5000 fans at the parc de la villette on the 5th of september 1973. in 1974, the band recorded what was to be their final album, the "majisaraï" album, which was released the same year. the same year, jan hammer quit the band and was replaced by greg lake, the vocalist of emerson, lake and palmer. the band continued touring for a couple of years, and in 1977 they released the album "a la terre".
