The error is "TypeError: Invalid date" How can I get the time back from this string var ds = new Date('{"ok":"true","dateTime":{"year":2016,"month":8,"day":12,"hour":14,"minute":47,"second":37,"timezone_type":"date"} }'); //using momentjs to parse the date var newD = moment(ds.dateTime.timezone_type); A: Your structure is invalid. The dateTime object is inside an object. It is the main issue. For example {'a':1} does not make sense, but {'a':1,'dateTime':

{'year':2016,'month':8,'day':12,'hour':14,'minute':47,'second':37,'timezone_type':'date'}} does. With the above structure you can do var ds =

{'ok':true,'dateTime':{'year':2016,'month':8,'day':12,'hour':14,'minute':47,'second':37,'timezone_type':'date'}}; var newD = moment(ds.dateTime.timezone_type); Working example: <https://jsfiddle.net/tux3vpmq/1>.

and then choose a serial number. The order of the serial numbers is from oldest serial to newest serial. Once again, if your serial number is different then what you typed above, you will have to type the correct serial number in. I think a serial number of “11” will give you a serial of “13”. If your serial has a

“1” at the end, it will be “12”. Don’t worry, you will learn all of this in the next section. Once you know that you have activated all the company files that you need, you need to make sure that the necessary files are activated on all the accounts you are using. If you are up for doing this, check if you are using the correct company file when opening your company files. It is quite easy to make typos and mistakes when typing in the serial number. Have a look at the error message in the screen shot so that you know what it is when the error appears. 5ec8ef588b
