now, it has dropped its price down to a moderate starting price of $249. if you compare the new software to a paper-and-ink embroidery machine, it is far easier to acquire and understand. now you can embroideryize your designs at home in no time! the software is available in two packages, 8s and 10s. so whats the difference? the 10s version includes colour digitizing, while the 8s version is an all black and white version. note [] multicoloured designs enable you to create far more effects than those that can be created with black-and-white designs. by supporting multiple colours, you have the ability to run designs by hand in colour and then print them with the colour print or inkjet, and use the colour selection feature of the software to make sure the text and designs blend together seamlessly. there are three levels of bleeds, which provides the ability to design in a few simple steps. [] in the software, everything has its own user friendly colour and style choices. for instance, there is a font gallery, which you can drag and drop to create new family font. you can set the individual font parameter, such as the stroke weight, spacing, etc. it is really that easy to use. designing, exporting and printing looks great! for pc users you can save an svg file, or export to pdf files, which you can send as email attachments or use to generate a website using your own hosting website. there is an example toolbox included, so that you can create custom buttons, mouse pads, mouse caps and more with just a few clicks. you can also change the pad and pen colours, the font colour, size and many other parameters to make your project look super.
